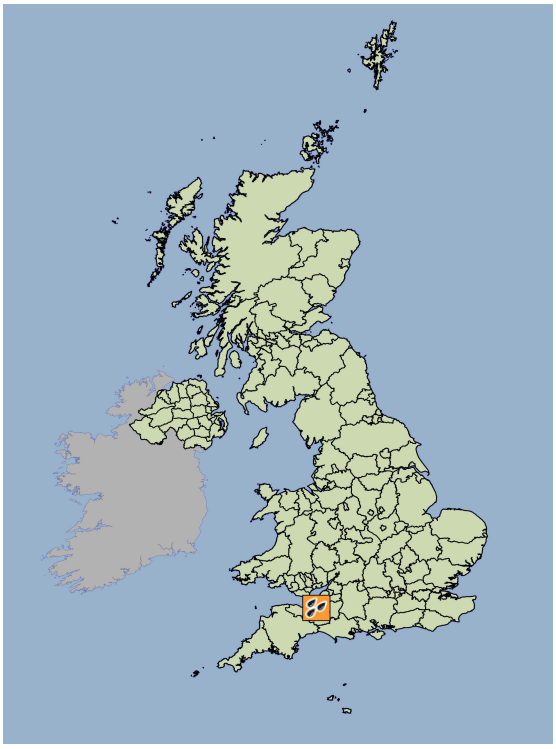
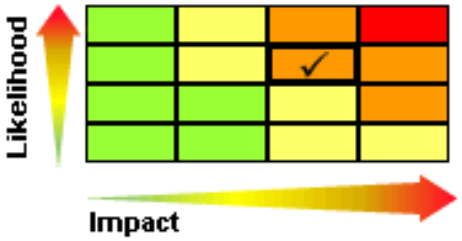
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Active frontal troughs will move eastwards across the UK during Friday, mild, moisture laden air bringing further rain. Even modest additional totals are expected to worsen the ongoing flooding.

The Met Office have issued an Amber Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:30 on Fri, 24th Jan 2014 until 23:45 on Fri, 24th Jan 2014

Bands of rain are expected to move eastwards across the area during Friday bringing rainfall accumulations of 10 to 20 mm. With water levels already exceptionally high on the Somerset Levels, the public should be prepared for further flooding.
